The Upside Down

"I rolled a Number, the Demogorgon Verb - Past Tense me." These were First Name of a Person

Byre's final words, before he was dragged into the Upside Noun.

The Noun Down is a Adjective dimension beyond our own. Here, it is always time of day and even the very air is Adjective making it difficult to Verb - Base Form.

The Upside Down is connected to our Noun through a portal under Location. Only a very large amount of Noun - Plural could have created such a portal. Picture this as an Animal and a profession walking across a tightrope. The same profession can only verb in one direction, while the same animal can go underneath the Noun.

If you ever find yourself lost in the Upside Down, you should immediately try to Verb - Base Form. Getting out is not Adjective. And be careful-if you stay lengthoftime in the Upside Down, you could even Verb - Base Form. Make sure to pack plenty of type of food!
