DEAR _____<sup>First Name of a Person</sup>: There is a boy I like at school. He is a very _____<sup>Adjective</sup> person around school. I'm not. I do have a wide variety of _____<sup>Noun - Plural</sup>, and I even talk to some of his.

My friends know I like him, and they would like for me to _____<sup>Verb - Base Form</sup> to him. I wouldn't mind that, but what would I say? They want it to happen in person, but I want to do it by text, where I feel more _____<sup>Adjective</sup>. What should I do? -- _____<sup>Noun</sup> TEEN
