Getting Bosh to play CS:GO

In a land much l	ike our own, 3 friends	Verb Past Tense	together,	Verb Present ends in ING Noun Plural	whenever they wanted	. Their names v	were Veorge, Bo	sh and Hiras. Veorge	had an extensive collection of	Noun Plural that he we	ould often	Verb Base Form	Hiras had the least i	number of Noun Plural	from the trio, but he w	ould actually _	Verb Base Form	most of his to a n	on-autistic play time. Now we co	ome to Bosh. My GodBo	osh was so	Adjective Wl	nen it came to	un Plural ! He had more than H	Hiras, but less the Veorge.	However, the o	only one he woul	d ever Verb Base For	was Team Fortress 2. He w	as so addicted to it that he	e even made	Noun Plural	about it, like a little _	Noun Veorge and Hira	as knew they had to do sor	nething and do	something fast,	so they came up with	a master plan to get Bosh to play	CS:GO; a game he religion	ouslyverb	Past Tense for	no good reason at all.	All Hiras had to do was hack into	o Bosh's PC, but that was	easier said than	done, because F	osh was no computer	insult such as noob or weeb or v	whatever . He knew of H	iras' hacking al	bilities and woul	d even acuse Hiras of	his computer's natural glitches.	Veorge came up with a bo	etter plan thoug	gh. Not only was	hacking illegal, but if	the duo had to tell the tale (muo	ch like now), it may end u	p being way to	O Verb Present e	nds in ING for the li	steners.
Veorge's plan w	as much moreAdjective	. All they	had to do was _	Verb Base Form	into Bosh's house and while he wa	S Verb Base Form , a	ccess his Steam	account and do	wnload CS:GO within	Number minutes (Bosh h	nadfast internet speed in gigab	its per second	internet speeds).

The night came and Hiras and Veorge were in their Hiras was wearing his and flavoured boots, while Veorge was wearing a carbon copy of Bosh's mask. They chucked a 5mm grappling hook round Bosh's windowsill and upwards. They opened his 20m window andverb Past Tense inside. Bosh's room was of moderate size with books like 'Peter Rabbit's stupid lying around the place. There was even an inflatable in the corner! In no time at all, Veorge spotted Bosh's computer and verb Past Tense over to it while Hiras followed close behind. Hiras the on button and the machine wurred into life Stunned at the noise, Hiras tried to quieten the beast by placing his over the fan grill, but to no avail. Veorge said "Don't be such a!" and pulled Hiras away from the PC. Veorge looked round and confirmed that Bosh was still asleep. The boys looked at Bosh's PC, but saw that it appearing to do anything. Hiras had been involved in many a lengthy conversation with Bosh and knew what the problem was. "
All we have to do is it off and on again at least times and it will work", he in excitement. Veorge replied with a gentle nod and Hiras went ahead with the PC ritual, as it were.
After minutes or so, the PC into life and the desktop screen loaded. Veorge loaded up Steam and hit install on CS:GO. They hid the install window and left the very way they came in. The next day, Hiras and Veorge asked Bosh, "Do you want to play CS:GO?" to which Bosh replied "Nah, Son, I am dissapoint" (spelt incorrectly on purpose). Bosh went to open Team Fortress 2, when he noticed that Counter Strike:

Global Offensive was in white. "How on Earth had it been installed?" he wondered to himself. He took one loo at his mouse and lifted it to his so he could smell it. "aHA! Veorge and Hiras" Aonomatopoeia came to Hiras and Veorge's door the next day. Bosh was standing there with a crowbar ready to beat his friends round the head. Fortunately, Veorge and Hiras had come prepared and used pepper spray as soon as they saw Bosh standing before them. Bosh went to hospital and only played CS:GO after that day.
The end.
