It happened that the _____ met the ____ in a ____ nad as she thought to herself, "He is _____ and full of experience, and much esteemed in the _____," she spoke to him in a Adjective way. "Good-day, dear Mr. Noun, how are you? How is all with you? How are you getting through this dear ______?" The ______, full of all kinds of arrogance, looked at the Noun from head to Noun, and for a long time did not know whether he would give any Noun or not. At last he said, "Oh, thou wretched beard-cleaner, thou piebald Noun , thou hungry mouse-hunter, what canst thou be thinking of? Dost thou venture to ask how I am getting on? What hast thou learnt? How many arts dost thou understand?" "I understand but one," replied the ______, modestly. "What art is that?" asked the ______. "When the _____ are following me, I can spring into a _____ and save myself." "Is that all?" said the ______. "I am master of a hundred arts, and have into the bargain a sackful of ______. Thou makest me sorry for thee; come with me, I will teach thee how people get away from the ______." Just then came a ______ with four _____. The Noun sprang nimbly up a tree, and sat down on top of it, where the branches and Noun quite concealed her. "Open your sack, Mr. Noun, open your sack," cried the Noun to him, but the Noun had already seized him, and were holding him fast. "Ah, Mr. Noun ," cried the Noun. "You with your hundred arts are left in the lurch! Had you been able to climb like me, you would not have lost your _____."
