My Journey

A Letter Home From a Portuguese Explorer
Dear Mom and Dad,
I am sorry I have not written sooner but the from Portugal to West Africa took longer than expected. Fortunately, it turned out we did NOT lack supplies this time and arrived at our destination before the food ran out. I also got a chance to use the tools that I learned about at Prince Henry's school when it was my turn to check our course.
The area where I am staying is by the Songhai Empire. The Songhai are the third in a Noun of empires that have ruled this area. We are hoping to claim territory and build an Noun of our own for Portugal. Given the of the Portuguese, this should not be too difficult. Most of our Noun Plural with the people here have been positive as we traded Adjective goods for gold.
However, I was very upset to learn that prisoners of war here are and sold at the market.
I am hoping to learn new during my travels and will make sure to share any tips with you that can help with the family farm.
Sincerely,
Proper Noun
