My Letter Home

A letter from an explorer to his or her family back home.

Dear Mom and Dad,

I am sorry I have not written sooner but the Noun from Portugal to West Africa took longer than expected. Fortunately, it turned out we did NOT lack Adjective supplies this time and arrived at our destination before the food ran out. I also got a chance to use the Adjective tools that I learned about at Prince Henry's school when it was my turn to check our course.

The area where I am staying is verb Past Tense by the Songhai Empire. The Songhai are the third in a Noun of empires that have ruled this area. We are hoping to claim territory and build an Noun of our own for Portugal. Given the Noun of the Portuguese, this should not be too difficult. Most of our Noun Plural with the people here have been positive as we traded Adjective goods for gold. However, I was very upset to learn that prisoners of war here are Verb Past Tense and sold at the market. I am hoping to learn new Noun Plural during my travels and will make sure to share any tips with you that can help with the family farm. Sincerely,

Vasco
