The Fox & the Crow

One _____ morning as the Fox was _____ his _____ through the wood in search of a bite to _____, he saw a Crow on the limb of a _____ overhead. This was by no means the first Crow the Fox had ever seen. What caught his _____ this time and made him stop for a _____ look, was that the _____ Crow held a bit of _____ in her _____.

"No need to search any farther," thought _____ Master Fox. "Here is a _____ bite for my breakfast."

Up he trotted to the foot of the tree in which the Crow was _____, and looking up _____, he cried, "Good-morning, _____ creature!"

The Crow, her head cocked on one side, watched the Fox _____. But she kept her beak tightly closed on the _____ and did not return his greeting.

"What a _____ creature she is!" said the Fox. "How her _____ shine! What a _____ form and what _____ wings! Such a wonderful _____ should have a very _____ voice, since everything else about her is so perfect. Could she _____ just one song,

I know I should hail her Queen of _____Noun_____."

Listening to these _____Adjective_____ words, the Crow forgot all her suspicion, and also her _____Noun_____. She wanted very much to be called Queen of _____Noun_____. So she opened her beak wide to utter her
