Job Interview

Number
Verb Present Ends In Ing
Verb Present Ends In Ing
Verb Present Ends In Ing
Adjective
Adjective
Verb Present Ends In Ing
Adjective
Year
Company
Noun Plural
Noun Plural
Part Of Body
Verb Past Tense
Verb Present Ends In Ing
Number
Number
Part Of Body
Part Of Body
Part Of Body

Job Interview

Boss: Please, sit down. I understand you're here for the pharmacist position here at CVS, correct
ME: yes sir! Thank you.
{* Pulls out a resume from my briefcase *}
Me: Here you go.
Boss: Ah, thank you. Let's see here, it looks like you've been a pharmacist back in for quite some time.
Me: I've done a lot of
Boss: Indeed you have. So first I'd like to know why you want to work with us
Me: Well, I love verb Present ends in ING I'm also passionate about verb Present ends in ING Boss: Sounds I'd like to know more about yourself for this position. Why should I hire you, for example.
Me: Well, I'm I'm very academic, especially when it comes to verb Present ends in ING
•
The boss: You're very , I like that. I see here that you were fired in working at a Company .
Me: well, for an incomprehensible reason actually. I let one of the Noun Plural out and accidentally left the register open. I was going through number of Body had just verb Past the register open. I was going through number of Body had just verb Past the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body the register open. I was going through number of Body Tense at the time.
Boss:

Oh, goodness! Sorry to hear that. If I happen to hire you, I require some	You will have your own office. You'll work days on and Number days off.
Me: Sounds great!
{* We both get up from our seats and shake / Part of Body as he pats me on the / Part of Body with his / Part of Body *}
Boss: Thank you for showing interest in this position.
Me: Thank you!

©2025 WordBlanks.com · All Rights Reserved.