A Basic Story

It was the _____ Adverb _____ of her high school career, and Ava thought it would be great. She had spent the first two weeks in a different school, but when her _____ Adverb _____ anxiety attacks became too apparent, she decided to go back to her home school, thinking it'd be better for her. As always, Ava was right, or so she thought for the first few months of school.

Because it was a relatively _____ Adjective _____ school district, where everyone knew just about everyone, Ava had already knew everyone at her old school. She had been in the same class from when she left. Another reason of to why Ava wanted to go back to her old school was for her friends, well her one best friend and a boy she was " Talking" to. After a few weeks after being in school, her and the boy, Zach, had started dating. Cindy was not only Ava's best friend, but also basically her sister. Cindy was ecstatic that she was back in school with her. Zach had also been extremely happy that Ava had come back. School was going great, Ava was getting to know the people she had known of, but had never actually spoken to them. Ava was making new friends. High school was turning out to be just like the movies, a little too much like the movies. It was like the High School Musical movies, only to turn more into _____ Proper Noun _____, just with less romance and murder and more people turning on each other and typical, _____ Adjective _____, _____ Adjective _____ high school drama. The more time that passed, the less happy Ava became . She didn't know what to do. After _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____ to her best friend and sister, _____ Noun Plural decided to break up with _____ Noun Plural. She didn't think he was the source of her unhappiness, even if he wasn't, she just wanted to feel happy again. She was glad she had broken up with him though, she could see what kind of person he actually was. He was a _____ Adjective, _____ Adjective, _____ Adjective person and she did not want to be that girl with that guy.

A few months after breaking up with Zach, Ava felt happier, though not necessarily happy. She didn't know how to explain it to Cindy, so she didn't. Ava had huge mood swings, like her hormones were always out of control. She couldn't help it. No one seemed to understand that. After Zach and Ava _____ Verb Past Tense, they became pretty close friends again, but she didn't want to get back with him, he didn't understand her the way he needed to and he was just too immature and close-minded for her to be happy with him again.

One day Ava's mom had made her extremely mad, so for the sake of Cindy and Zach, she decided to tell them what and what not to do. Cindy followed Ava's directions, she knew that would be best for Ava. Zach on the other hand, did not listen to Ava, like he did everytime he was given simple instructions. He thought he knew what was best for Ava, he was gravely mistaken. He ended up making things worse with Ava. His one simple instruction, was to just not talk to her. All she wanted was space. To Zach, that was too much to ask for. She was the fire and he was the forest. He just fed into her and he ended up getting burnt. Everyone else was fine, it was just him. He was the only one who didn't listen, so he was the one she needed to distance herself from. No matter how hard she tried to ignore him, he still got to her, he would not go away. It got to the point where he would just complain about Ava to Cindy, so Cindy would tell Ava. Ava and Cindy had already known prior to Zach that guys were dumb and not worth any of the trouble, especially guys like Zach. Cindy was in a relationship through all of Ava's troubles, but Ava decided not to worry about guys in high school, or maybe ever. Smart! She was always happier with friends and her close family members than any boy she had been with.
