Food diaries

When stuck at home, the most consistent thing in my life has been food. So much so that I thought it'd be interesting to document my week.

Day 1: Cleaned out leftovers in the fridge. _____ Number containers of [_____ Fave Food], something that's marked with [_____ date]. and something [_____ Adjective - ends in Y] and [_____ color]-colored

Day 2: Went to the [_____ type of store] store and bought [_____ Number - two digits] barrels of [_____ sweet treat plural] and forgot to get [_____ Food you cant live without]

Day 3: Tried to cook a [_____ Comfort food dish] in the microwave. It took [_____ number] rounds of nuking and [_____ number less than ten] out of 10 would not recommend.

Day 4: Felt inspired as I scrolled through the social media hashtag #quarantinecooking and imagined myself mastering the art of [_____ verb - ends with ING] while juggling [_____ hand-held food]

Day 5: Discovered that eating the same food 5 days straight is in fact, [_____ adjective - ends with ING].

Day 6: Found a dried [_____ fave snack] behind the couch. Contemplated if it was still good to eat.

Day 7: Didn't realize that I would be attracted to the smell of [_____ scent]. It made me feel the sweet, sweet emotion of [_____ feeling] and I can't get enough. Makes me want to eat [_____ food you love]

Looking forward to a [_____ adjective] week to come!
