A Day in the Lab

_____ Sound goes your alarm clock. Time to get up and get to work in the lab! You _____ Verb Base Form out of bed, brush your _____ Part of Body, put on your favorite _____ Adjective scrubs and run out the door. Of course, you have to stop for _____ Food on your way in to work so that you can be energized and fueled for your shift. You pull into the parking lot, _____ Verb Base Form into the hospital and clock in. Only _____ Number minutes late! Nice!

You walk into the lab and your coworkers are so _____ Emotion to see you. They have so much to tell you from their busy shift. First of all, there are _____ Number draws that need to be done! The phlebotomists are all out on the floors drawing blood as _____ Adverb as they can. The tube station is full.

In the distance, you can hear a _____ Adjective alarm going off. You can't quite recognize the sound.

"What instrument is that alarm coming from?" you ask your coworker.

"Oh, that's just the _____ Noun machine, it has been going off all shift!"

You are very confused, but before you can respond, you hear an announcement overhead. "May I have your attention please: _____ Noun alert, _____ Location, room _____ Number!" You rush into the Blood Bank to pack a cooler of _____ Noun to send to the code. "Since when do we stock that in our blood bank?!" you wonder to yourself.

Heading back out to the lab, you see something _____ Adjective on the floor. Upon further investigation, you realize that it is _____ Liquid leaking out of the Chemistry Line! That can't be good!

"STAT _____ Noun", a phlebotomist says as they drop off a bag of specimens. Oh good, a hematology sample. You take the tube of _____ Noun out of the bag and load it onto the Sysmex. Of course, it needs a diff. You make your slide, get it stained, and put it on the microscope. You have never seen anything like this before! There are dozens of _____ Adjective _____ Noun all over the first field you see! That will surely need to be submitted for a path review.

A technologist _____ Verb Present ends in S out of the microbiology department. "Has anyone seen a _____ Color top swab laying around? It is a STAT _____ Part of Body culture!" You check all of the usual spots, and find the missing swab behind _____ Noun _____ the on the counter in the processing department.

A surgery tech _____ Verb Present ends in S _____ the lab carrying a large bucket. "I have a _____ Part of Body _____ in here, I need formalin!" A histo tech _____ Verb Present ends in S _____ over to help. "Man, this bucket is _____ Adjective _____!" the tech says as they go back over to the histology department.

You look at the clock and it is _____ Time _____. Time to go home already! You were so _____ Emotion _____ that you didn't even take a break to _____ Verb Base Form _____. What a crazy day in the lab!
