Vacation Time

The most disastrous vacation I ever spent with my _____ Noun was the year we went to Lake _____ Adjective Rock. First, we had been told that our cabin overlooked the water. However, while we could see the water, it was a 20-minute walk over _____ Adjective concrete and _____ Verb Present ends in ING sand. No problem we had a car. Unfortunately, the family _____ Noun broke down the second day we were there and spent the next three days in the local _____ Place. As a result, we had to _____ Verb Base Form or take a taxi wherever we went. Second, the weather was near _____ Number degrees the entire time, and the humidity was 95 percent, which is the reason we rented an air-conditioned cabin. But, the air conditioning consisted of one overworked and undersized window unit that caught fire one day while we were gone. Luckily, it was a _____ Verb Base Form fire. In addition, we came back to find our _____ Noun Plural and our _____ Noun Plural smelling of smoke. We were moved to another cabin--even farther from the lake, of course. Yet, we were determined to make the best of it. And we might have, had my dad not broken his _____ Part of Body waterskiing. Third, our vacation was cut short. We headed home with _____ First Name of a Person in a cast, _____ First Name of a Person _____ Verb Present ends in ING, and the rest of us in very bad moods.
