Idk what to name this

In the year _____
In the year _____, _____ have become commonplace on Earth. They are doing everything, from _____ and _____, to _____ aircraft and performing surgeries. The latest is a team of _____ so sophisticated that they are said to learn a person to codify their _____ into an algorithm and to _____ them. They are supposedly the most advanced _____ to have existed, the first true relational _____. Things go terribly wrong when you, a _____ tester, and _____ eagerly unbox and activate one. For the first _____ weeks everything goes splendidly but, as the _____ learns you, it attempts to alter your behavior toward what it deems to be more appropriate. It begins to subtly, and then not so subtly, reward good behavior, scold _____ when you fail, and eventually control you physically, though never with true harm or malice. Before long you realize it sees you as its child. By the time you are locked in your _____ with _____ and promised a _____ if you don't struggle, you must decide how to outsmart the _____ mommy machine and power down the entire batch before the rest are activated.
