Soren's 10th Birthday Adventure

SOREN'S BIRTHDAY ADVENTURE:

Ten years ago, when the _____ Object Noun faced the _____ Object Noun at just the right angle, an exceptionally _____ Adjective baby came into the world, surrounded by _____ Noun.

At the same time, on a(n) _____ Adjective planet called Earth, a baby named Soren also came into the world, surrounded by love.

_____ Very Big Number _____ Adjective kilometers separated them, but parts of their childhoods were similar.

The alien child, named Dalgrish, _____ Verb Past Tense all the local, abandoned snarlag dens and _____ Adverb gill-glopped _____ Noun Plural for fun.

Soren played in parks and libraries and learned to _____ Verb Base Form all on his own.

Dalgrish looked at their _____ Colour sky and wondered " _____ Exclamation To think that I live in this _____ Adjective place!"

Soren looked at his own, _____ Adjective sky and wondered " _____ Exclamation To think that I live in this mysterious place!"

They grew older still.

Over time, Dalgrish found _____ Number blurks to protect from _____ Adjective danger, especially in the season of _____ Noun Plural and volcanoes.

Meanwhile, Soren gained a younger brother and two cousins and a(n) _____ Adjective puppy to share _____ Adverb in the wonders of his world.

When

Dalgrish turned 10, giant snarlags _____ Verb Past Tense _____ to reclaim their ancient dens, just as the _____ Noun _____ of Eshildu had foretold. It was time for the child to _____ Verb Base Form _____ for a new adventure.

And when Soren turned 10... well, but that's where the _____ Noun _____ ends, because Soren's story has always been his own to tell. And even if he never gets to meet with every wonder in our _____ Adjective _____ galaxy, including any alien children born at exactly the same _____ Unit of Time _____, that story will be a gift that keeps on _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____. Why? Because every story is _____ Adjective _____ -- and because every story is unique, each one simply has to be _____ Verb Past Tense _____ as we go.

So, happy birthday, Dalgrish!

And happy _____ Special Day _____, Soren!

May all your _____ Noun Plural _____ be _____ Adjective _____ and good. :)
