College Essay

I have never been more _____ Adjective _____ than when I walked off the bus on my _____ Number _____ day of school.

The initial _____ Adjective _____ of finding and boarding the correct _____ Transportation _____ had worn off over the course of the ride, and in its place was uncertainty. I'd never been on the campus; I'd never even been to this part of _____ Location _____. I stood by a sign that said the "don't feed the _____ Animal _____" and looked in vain for another sign. I had nobody to call except my _____ Family Member _____, who lived in a different state and knew less than I did. At that moment, I didn't really have any other choice but to steel myself and choose to be _____ Adjective _____.

I picked a direction and started _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____. I went in and out of a building that turned out to be the _____ Noun _____, and then through a building that housed the pool. When I finally crossed paths with someone who looked like they also attended the school, they told me the building I was looking for didn't exist. At this point, I considered _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____. I thought about hiding out by the _____ Noun _____ and trying again the next day, but I couldn't let myself give up. I tried the building across the path. This building was not my building either, but this time I got lucky and I found what I needed: a _____ Noun _____.

I found my building and walked into the first-day assembly just in time to hear the director say, "Welcome to _____ Location _____ High School. I hope you have a great year." And I knew I would.
