

carpenter and camel

1. Adjective
2. Adverb
3. Noun
4. Adjective Ends In Est
5. Noun
6. Noun
7. Noun

carpenter and camel

There lived a carpenter named Ujwalak in a _____ Adjective _____. He _____ Adverb _____ very poor . Tired of _____ Noun _____, he left the village and went for another village. There was a _____ Adjective Ends in EST _____ forest on the way. There he saw that a camel was twitching in _____ Noun _____ pain. When the camel gave the child, he came to _____ Noun _____ _____ Noun _____ with the camel and the camel. There, after tying the camel to a peg outside the house, he went to the forest to cut branches full of leaves for her to eat. The camel ate green-green tender buds. After eating green leaves like this for many days, the camel became healthy and strong. The child of the camel also grew and became young. The carpenter tied an hour around his neck, so that he would not be lost anywhere. Hearing his voice from afar, the carpenter used to bring him home. Carpenter's children also grew up on camel's milk. The camel was also used to carry the load. His business was run by that camel. Seeing this, he borrowed some money from a rich man and went to Gurjar country and brought another camel from there. Within a few days he had many camels and camels. A keeper was also kept for them. Carpenter's business flourished. Rivers of milk started flowing in the house. Everything else was fine---but the camel whose bell was tied around his neck became very proud. He considered himself special from others. When all the camels went to the forest to eat leaves, he used to leave everyone and roam in the forest alone. By the sound of his bell, the lion could know where the camel was. Everyone forbade him to remove the bell from his throat, but he did not agree. One day when all the camels were coming back to the village after eating leaves in the forest and drinking water from the pond, he left them all and went for a walk in the forest alone. The lion also followed him after hearing the sound of the bell. And when he came near, he pounced on him and killed him.

