Itchy

I woke up this morning feeling very Adjective. The night before was vaguely remembered due to the Verb drinking and plentiful Noun. The last thing I remembered was speaking to a Adjective guy named First name. First name seemed like a really nice guy and I remembered my friend asking him if he wanted to come party with us. After that everything went Adjective. I called First name who is one of my friends, to ask her if she remembered anything that happened. She told me that after everyone had left that First name asked if he could stay over and make dinner and possibly stay for a few days. I then looked into my wallet and found several receipts for taco Location and Noun Noun. I decided to look for First name to see if he was still in my Location. I then found him naked on the kitchen floor and the only thing covering his Noun were chalupa wrappers and mild sauce packets and a letter to me saying how Verb in bed I was. The only problem was I kept calling him Name of a person Name of a person. P.s. I don't think putting mild sauce on my Animal was a very good idea. Hope for the best, Love, First name. I guess that explains everything.
