The Silly Snowflake

Once upon a time in the land of Spirit,

A Noun splashed happily in its puddle.

And suddenly it heard the call of the Spirit-wind.

"Come, come with Noun. I want to transform you.

I want to take you on a journey that will change you.";

And the raindrop Verb and Verb and continued to play.

"I am fine here. I do not wish to go.";

But the Spirit-wind persisted.

"Come, let go of your comfort.

Come with me and I will change you.";

So strong was the urging that the raindrop let go and followed.

And the Spirit-wind surrounded it with its very breath

and carried it close to Spirit's heart

And the drop turned round and round, and was shaped in Spirit's hands. . . .

shaped with arms that reached out,

shaped with a center so strong.

It was transformed uniquely and beautifully,

and it began to fall gently toward the ground.

It swirled and floated

and finally landed upon the face of a child,

who squealed in delight,

"Oooh, a snowflake.";

And the Spirit-wind whispered,

"You have become who you are meant to be.";
