My own creation Myth

Location
Noun Noun
Location
First Name
Location
First Name
Number
First Name
Noun Noun
Noun
First Name
Location
First Name
First Name
First Name
First Name
Number
First Name
Number
Number
First Name

\sim 4		D1 1
7/1	Animal	Phiral
47.	Allilliai	1 Iuiai

25. Animal Plural

My own creation Myth

In the beginning, the	Location V	vas a	Noun	Noun	where	Location	and earth were mixed together, and in th	is egg was cor	ntained	First name	He felt s	suffocated,	so he cracke	ed the egg with a broadax, and the light, cl	ear part of the	egg floated	up to form _	Location	while	the cold, he	avy part stayed down and formed Earth.	First name	stood in	the middle,	and he and	I the egg's _	Number	parts grew and grew until he was nin	ne million li in	height.
When First name	died, his breath	n became th	ne wind and c	louds, his	voice the ro	olling thunde	er, and his eyes the sun and the moon. Hi	S Noun	and	Noun bec	came the st	tars in the s	ky, the flow	ers and trees from his skin, the marrov	w in his bones	became jad	e and pearls,	and his	Noun	_the good ra	ain that nurtured the Earth.
There are several version	as of the	First name	_legend, but o	one that is	common in	southern	Location is that of King Fang and	King Gao Xin	. Pangu was	s King Gao X	in's dog, a	and King G	ao Xin had a	great enmity with King Fang. He proc	laimed, "Anyo	one who car	n bring me Ki	ng Fang's	head will h	ave my dauş	ghter's hand in marriage,

"; but no one would try because of King Fang's fearsome army.
One dayslipped away and went to King Fang's court. King Fang was happy to see that he had deserted King Gao Xin, and welcomed him with a banquet. However, that night,sneaked into the king's chambers and bit off his head, returning back to King Gao Xin with it.
King Gao Xin was overjoyed to see thathad brought King Fang's head, but did not think to marry his daughter to a dogwould not eat fordays, and the king asked, "Why do you not eat? Are you angry that I would not marry my daughter to you?"; said, "No, just cover me with your golden bell fordays and I'll turn into a man
."; The king did so, but the princess peeked under on theday. She found thatfirst name already had man's body but retained ahead. However, once the bell had been raised the magic change stopped, and he remained a man with ahead. The princess married him and the settled in southern China, where they had four children, who became the ancestors of mankind.

©2025 WordBlanks.com · All Rights Reserved.