Frannie and Josh

Frannie and Josh sure are a Adjective couple. The story of how they met was certainly Adjective.

One day about Number years ago, Josh and Frannie met in a Location with a few of their closest Plural noun. Josh thought Frannie was very Adjective and from that point on he knew they would be Adjective friends. Frannie thought Josh was Adjective but they both attended different Place plural so they only saw each other once and a while. But they always Past tense verb when they could, and it was very Adjective. It wasn't until Josh joined the Noun and Frannie became a Noun did they realize how Adjective they were for each other. After Josh realize how much he Past tense verb Frannie, he knew what he had to do. So one day, after a very long Noun he finally arrived at the Location wearing his Noun and told Frannie how much he Past tense verb her. Frannie, looking as Adjective as could be, was feeling very Emotion. But when Josh asked her, "Will you marry me?"; she said yes! Everyone was watching them at the Location; people were Verb ending in ing children were Verb ending in ing and an old Noun even Past tense verb Frannie. It was certainly a sight to behold! Now they are both very Emotion to go Verb places together, with lots of Noun and Noun ahead of them.
