Becoming a Good Teacher

It used to be that being a good _____<sup>Noun</sup> meant you simply had to be a/n _____<sup>Adjective</sup> person. If you were willing to Verb your community, be attentive to both your spouse and _____<sup>Plural noun</sup> and be a/n _____<sup>Adjective</sup> employee, you certainly would have qualified as a good teacher.

But honestly, when classroom effectiveness is judged by the teachers own _____<sup>Adjective</sup> characteristics, and not measured by _____<sup>Noun</sup> achievement, how would we know if a teacher is really getting the job done?

Student performance is both _____<sup>Adjective</sup> and critical to assessing current teaching methods.
