Choir Audition

Once, there was a girl named First name. She loved to Verb and decided she should Verb for a choir. After training and preparing for several weeks, she finally found herself walking through the doors into the auditorium.

'First,' the choir director stated, 'I must ask if you can sing in German.'

'Of course,' Eireann replied cautiously, 'But my Swedish could use some work.'

The director simply nodded and plunked several keys on the grand piano. 'Sing.'

So

Eireann sang. She sang scales and arpeggios and arias, but the director never seemed satisfied. Finally, overwhelmed from such pressure, Eireann shouted 'Enough already!' at the top of her lungs.

'What was that?' the director asked.

Eireann simply looked away, ashamed at her outburst.

The choir director carried on saying, 'That was... BEAUTIFUL!'

So Eireann became a member of the choir.
