The Lark and Her Young Ones

A           Noun           had           Past tense verb           her nest in the early spring on the           Adjective           green wheat. The brood had almost grown to their           Adjective           strength and attained the use of their           Plural noun           and the full plumage of their feathers, when the owner of the field, looking over his ripe crop, said, 'The time           Present tense verb           come when I must ask all my           Plural noun to help me with my harvest.' One of the           Adjective           Larks heard his speech and related it to his mother, inquiring of her to what Noun           they should move for safety. 'There is no occasion to move yet, my son,' she           Past tense verb          ; 'the           Noun           who only sends to his friends to help him with his harvest is not really in earnest.' The owner of the field came again a few days later and _____<sup>Past tense verb</sup>_____the wheat shedding the grain from excess of ripeness. He said, 'I will _____<sup>Present tense verb</sup>_____myself tomorrow with my _____<sup>Noun</sup>_____ and with as many reapers as I can hire, and will get in the harvest.' The Lark on hearing these _____<sup>Noun</sup>_____said to her brood, 'It is time now to be off, my little ones, for the _____<sup>Noun</sup>_____is in earnest this time; he no longer trusts his friends, but will reap the _____<sup>Noun</sup>_____himself.'
