Vacation

Critter, Montgomery, and Jameson set off in their overloaded           Noun           on their way to           Location          .

They took out their           Plural noun           and began to           Verb          . Along the way, they came across a Adjective           hitchhiker who pleaded for a ride. They consented and were even kind enough to lend him a pair of           Adjective          Noun          . Once across the border, they let him off at a           Noun           and continued on. Within minutes, they had arrived at their           Noun           Pablo's house. Pablo offered them some Noun           and           Plural noun           which all three gratefully accepted.
